The meditations belonging to the illuminative way, of which we begin to treat in this Second Part, have for their subject the mysteries of the Life of our Saviour Christ, from the time of His Incarnation until His death upon the cross. These, as it appears by what has been said in the Introduction of this book, in the fourth chapter, are divided into three parts: (i.) those of His incarnation and childhood ;(ii.) those of His preaching ;and (iii.) those of His passion and death. After which follows the glorified life, which pertains to the unitive way; to this, also, are highly conducive, the mysteries of the passion, in which our Saviour Christ discovered the excess of His love, as hereafter shown.
